Seabrook-Wilson House

The Historical Society held its November meeting at the Seabrook-Wilson House in Port Monmouth. Gail Hunton of the Monmouth County Park System was the guest speaker who talked about the house's past and future. Formerly known as the "Spy House," it is one of the oldest houses in the Bayshore and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The oldest section has been dated from the early 18th century, with several additions occurring into the 19th century.

Originally owned by the Township, it was transferred to Monmouth County as part of a land swap in 1998. The County made it an addition to the 200-acre Bayshore Waterfront Park. The museum's artifacts which had been under the care of then curator Gertrude Neidlinger, were returned to lenders who could be located. Some of the museum's collection is now housed at the Heath Farm on Harmony Road in Middletown.

The Park System plans to preserve the house for public use as a visitors center and place for Park System programs and events. The first floor will be used as a public reception area, program space and exhibit area, while the second floor will be offices for rangers.

The house has structural problems and does not meet some codes. An architectural firm completed an assessment of the house and prepared plans for its rehabilitation that include the restoration of historic fabric and features, as well as replacing outdated mechanical and electrical systems. Ancient oak timbers will be reinforced instead of replaced. Landscaping will also be done around the house. Work will be funded by the County and a grant from the New Jersey Historic Trust. Construction on this long-term project is planned to begin in 2005.

Our meeting at the Seabrook-Wilson House was indeed special considering the house is currently closed for construction, and had previously been open only for limited Park System programs due to its condition. The grounds are open for the public's use.

What is an Historical Society?

As we do every year, the Historical Society is one of the organizations that sponsors a "Best in Show" trophy for the Classic Car Show at Middletown Day held every September. It was my turn this year to choose who would get this coveted prize and I took the duty very seriously.

I wanted to pick a car that would somehow represent the Society - should I choose an army jeep since it was part of World War II history, or perhaps the oldest car because it represented automobile history, or maybe a truck because of Middletown's agricultural history? I had originally thought that I would choose the car that was still being restored or "worked on" since history is a work in progress.

After three times around the parking lot gazing at the beautiful old gems, all polished and chromed, I still was unable to decide although there was one car in particular that I personally liked - a 1963 slate blue Cadillac convertible. It reminded me of my grandmother's 1964 Cadillac, nearly identical except for a few minor differences.

I hovered around that Caddy for the longest time and the memories flooded back to me. She would pull the front seat up so close to the steering wheel in order to reach the pedals that I always had to ride in the back because my legs just would not fit. I felt like I was a movie star and my grandmother was my own personal chauffeur. It was always the car of choice for family gatherings, funerals, and any time when comfort and class were a must.

Shaking my head of the memories, I walked around the parking lot again, still glancing over my shoulder at the Caddy. What a beaut, but I didn't want my choice to be personal - I was choosing on behalf of the Historical Society. Finally after the 4th go around and my pending vote for another car, I decided that I needed to go with my gut and I chose that blue Cadillac.

Even though it wasn't exactly like my grandmother's black hard-top, it sparked enough memories. This is what historical societies are all about - the memories they bring back. How many times have I overheard visitors to our museum at the MacLeod-Rice House say: "I remember that store where they had the . . ." or "When I was a kid, we used to hang out on that street over by the . . ."

Whether someone has lived in the area all their life or if they just moved in last week, historical societies exist to show what once was, to commemorate the past, preserve it for posterity, and touch off the memories to keep it alive.

Lighthouse Challenge

Presented by the New Jersey Lighthouse Society and the Lighthouse Preservation Organization of New Jersey, the 4th annual New Jersey Lighthouse Challenge was held over the October 18-19 weekend. It consisted of traveling the shoreline of the state to visit 11 participating land-based lighthouses. This year's souvenirs were trading cards with vintage images of each light, collected at the respective sites. Upon arriving at the last lighthouse, a special "11 Points of Light Club" cover card was presented to complete the boxed set.

The Challenge is a fantastic opportunity to visit these lighthouses across the state, two of which are right in our own backyard - Twin Lights and Sandy Hook. The other lights were Sea Girt, Barnegat, Tuckers Island, Absecon (with a short detour to visit Lucy the Margate Elephant being a must),

Hereford Inlet, Cape May, East Point, and Finns Point and Tinicum rear ranges. Let's hope that eventually the Conover Beacon on Leonardo beach will be part of a future Lighthouse Challenge.

Information Request

We are searching for a photograph of the Baptist chapel, built in 1809, which had been located at the top of Chapel Hill before it was demolished in the 1960's. Does anyone have a picture they will share?

Speaking of Chapel Hill, does anyone have any further information, besides news clippings, about the Nike explosion that took place there on May 22, 1958? The essentials are mentioned on page 97 of Randall Gabrielan's Arcadia book, "Middletown in the 20th Century." We'd like your remembrances for a future article.

Thanks so much!

Special thanks go to Jim & Pat Coughlin for the vacuum cleaner; and Dorothy Senk and Domonic Koehler for the folding tables.

Wish List

If your company is upgrading its equipment or if you have some items around the house no longer in use, and the surplus equipment is still in working condition, please consider donating it to us for a possible tax deduction and the satisfaction of helping us improve our operations. We need the following: large Rubbermaid storage tubs, button making machine, small refrigerator, map case, legal size filing cabinets, display cases, long folding tables, VCR player, TV cart.

One person's clutter . . .

Do you have items that are somehow connected to Middletown Township? We are seeking for the museum's collection advertising items from local businesses, past and present such as ash trays, coffee mugs, matchbook covers, pencils, pens, notepads, calendars or any other ephemera. We would also like commemorative items from the local fire departments wet downs and anniversary celebrations.

Calendar of Events

Please note: We will now be starting our meetings at 7:30 p.m. All our meetings are held at the MacLeod-Rice House at Croydon Hall, at the intersection of Chamone Ave. and Leonardville Rd., Leonardo section of Middletown Township, Monmouth County. Light refreshment is always served - bring a friend!

January 19th - Randall Gabrielan will present "Monmouth County African Americans - Commemorating People and Places"

February 16th - Claire Garland, a resident of Lincroft, will present "Cherokee Ike of Monmouth," a presentation on the Monmouth County Sand Hill Band of Indians

March 15th - Jean Klerman will present "Jewstown, Monmouth County, NJ - 1778." She is co-author of Peddler to Suburbanite, A History of Jews in Monmouth County

Lend a hand

We are forming committees to help with various aspects of the Society. If you would like to help with planning events, fundraising, membership, hospitality, landscaping or anything else, contact Laura Poll at 732-291-5610. We also want to hear from you what events you would be interested in attending. Let us know!
